Royale Siamese Mah Jongg is a fun and challenging variation of American Mah Jongg. Players manage two hands at the same time, adding a new level of strategy and excitement to the familiar game.

This class is designed for experienced American Mah Jongg players who have been playing for at least one year. No instruction will be given on regular American Mah Jongg, so participants should already be familiar with its rules and strategy.

Royale Siamese Mah Jongg has no Charleston and is played using two Mah Jongg sets. All equipment will be provided for use during class, so there is no need to bring a set. However, each participant MUST have a 2026 Mah Jongg card, as 2026 cards will no longer be available from the National Mah Jongg League in February, 2027.

During the first class, we will explain the rules of Royale Siamese Mah Jongg and highlight how the game differs from regular American Mah Jongg. With only a few new rules to learn, experienced players should be able to pick up the game quickly. Students will begin playing during the first class, with guidance from the instructors as they become familiar with managing two hands at once.

We will also cover the rules for two and three person play. Almost all class time will be devoted to hands-on play, giving students plenty of opportunities to practice, develop strategies, and build their confidence. As with any game, the more you play, the more comfortable and proficient you will become.
