TRANSITION

April 8 was the end of my term as Chair of Council, and I know our new Chair, Ken Mulholland, will do a fine job. As I bow out, I want to review where we are, and also look into the future. Our Wilmington Lifelong Learning program is recognized as a leader among the approximately 120 Osher Lifelong Learning Institute programs. We’re an academic cooperative – we teach and learn from each other. Membership and the numbers of courses and instructors are at or near all-time highs, and the quality of the courses is generally excellent; it requires a lot of admirable hard work and dedication by instructors, other volunteers, and our staff to keep everything this way. The smiles and the chatter I see and hear in the lobby make me believe we’re also meeting important social needs of our members. We’re building a Facebook presence as another way to reach our current and potential new, younger, and more diverse members. We’re also asking all of you to bring your friends who might be interested in our program to visit and perhaps join, in that way helping us maintain and build our membership. We are looking for and finding ways to work with other UD sites and potential Delaware partners. We’re also asking all of you to bring your friends who might be interested in our program to visit and perhaps join, in that way helping us maintain and build our membership. We are looking for and finding ways to work with other UD sites and potential Delaware partners. I have a good feeling as I give up my position, and I’ll remain on Council for another year and will help all I can to resolve issues as they arise.

There are always things that aren’t as good as I’d like. It’s hard to match our facilities and equipment with our classes of varying sizes and needs, so compromises are necessary although Carol Bernard does a wonderful job solving most problems. Parking, safety, and health issues are always concerns, but we’re fortunate to have our UD Manager Basil Maas, Constable Anderson, and the rest of our dedicated and very competent permanent staff for these most critical needs. Many other issues are well managed by our thirty volunteer committees which report to Council.

One of our most important problems is that while we are -- and should be -- grateful for our wonderful building, it is now 23 years old. Arsht Hall will require extensive renovation – our share is some $3 million worth -- in about five years. We have established a budget and are building reserves to provide for the necessary work. Our income (over $1 Million per year) comes from several sources including endowments, gifts, and grants, but over 80% comes from the membership fees we pay at registration. In spite of our efforts to minimize the impact on you, our members, these will almost certainly have to be increased somewhat more in the next few than in most past years. We have received some generous unrestricted gifts from members at registration and other times, which help, and we greatly appreciate them. We hope for more such gifts to help us minimize fee increases while meeting our financial obligations.

I send my best, warm wishes to Ken as he puts his ideas into action, and to all of you, my fellow members. I’ll see you in the Lobby.

COUNCIL

On April 8, Ron Bowers, Marv Cytron, Len DeCapua, Ben Raphael, and Lucie Shader joined the ten continuing members of Council for three-year terms. Ken Mulholland became Chair of Council.
DON’T LET YOUR FRIENDS FALL

Last month, there were five tripping incidents at Arsht with one requiring transport to the hospital. Tripping is one of the major sources of injuries for seniors. We have all been reminded to keep our bags off the floor and out of aisles, but we don’t always do it. We need to “be our brothers keeper” and make sure that we do not cause harm to another or ourselves by carelessness. One annoyed person reported to the office that while entering school through the main doorway, they tripped over a bag left there by someone waiting to load his car. The bag owner said, “watch your step” after the trip but did not move the bag. Come on folks, let’s make sure we all get home safely.

OSHER LIFELONG LEARNING FINANCIAL STATUS

The March issue of the newsletter described the financial status of Osher Lifelong Learning. Arsht Hall is 23 years old and will require several repairs and upgrades over the next five years, with the most expensive being a new heating and air conditioning system at an estimated cost of three million dollars ($3,000,000) in 2018. OLLI’s only revenue stream that can be increased is membership fees.

To minimize fee increases in the next few years, Council approved a Fundraising Committee under the leadership of Pam Meitner. Pam and I met with Jim Broomall of Professional and Continuing Studies at the University of Delaware to understand our options. We have an opportunity to send a letter soliciting contributions from our members in May and June, and plan to do so. Stay tuned for further developments.

VOLUNTEER WEEK IS COMING!!

Every year, in the spring, we take a week to recognize those members who have so generously given of their time and talents to help make this place the success that it is. If you’ve bought a book, eaten a cookie, enjoyed a lobby concert or an art show, taken a class, or learned something new here at Osher Lifelong Learning, then, chances are you can thank a volunteer.

This year, we will be saying “Thank You” to our hundreds of volunteers with a small gift. If you were a volunteer this past year, look for a table that will be set up in the lobby during the week of April 22 to claim your token of thanks.

And if you haven’t volunteered yet, won’t you consider serving on one or more of our many committees in the fall? Just remember to fill out the flip side of the registration form indicating your interests, and you’ll be on your way to making a difference here at Osher Lifelong Learning.

THANKS ALL for a wonderful 2012-2013.

OSHER INSTRUCTOR TURNS AUTHOR

Are you considering becoming an instructor at Osher? Volunteering as an instructor can be fulfilling, enjoyable and lead to unexpected events. Many instructors find the appreciation of their students very gratifying and that appreciation keeps them coming back to teach again. Yet, there is another unexpected benefit when students encourage the instructor to write a book based on the material developed for the course. That is exactly what happened to one instructor at Osher in Wilmington – Ron Robertson.

Ron has taught "America in a Changing World" and its sequel for the past two years. Both courses focus on worldwide economic trends based on extensive research data that Ron has compiled, and both impart a large dose of optimism for the future of America. After several semesters of students encouraging Ron to "write it all down," he finally took the plunge and tackled the daunting task of writing the book, Optimism for a Changing America. Ron’s book has entered the production stage, which means that galley copies will be completed by the end of April with the first-run publication completed by the end of May. Ask Ron about his adventure in writing! For more information contact Ron at robe70@comcast.net. Congratulations, Ron!

EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES
“RELENTANT TRAVELER” AND CHESS

Moira Donoghue and Judy Winters met in an OLLI genealogy workshop and hit it off. Donoghue, a retired attorney and veteran traveler, and Winters, a retired teacher and novice traveler, compared travel stories. “You’re so adventurous!” Winters recalled saying, admitting to Donoghue that she wasn’t traveling as much as she’d hoped after retirement because of inexperience and inhibitions about solo travel. So these two new friends created and launched an extracurricular activity they’re calling “The Reluctant Traveler.”

Although it debuted too late to be listed in the catalog this semester, “The Reluctant Traveler” has attracted 30 participants. Meeting at 12:30 on Fridays, the group reviews a slide presentation developed by the leaders, information gleaned from their personal experience and from Internet search sites about such issues as finding a reputable travel broker, learning ahead of time what you need to do for personal security and safety, and how to meet others as a single traveler. The activity is different from the long-time “Travel Adventures” class in that, it doesn’t provide a travelogue as much as a seminar in “how to make your own good travel choices.” Donoghue and Winters are not travel agents and don’t pitch specific itineraries, although after three days in January at the New York Times Travel Show they came to class with a steamer trunk full of brochures, including a promotional offer to visit North Korea. Their idea is “how can we help others to overcome their concerns and make good travel choices?” They plan to fine tune the workshop after its current debut and offer it again in Spring 2014. By then they will have conquered miles and talked to many other “reluctant” travelers.

The extracurricular group for chess players also started this semester. Fred Bauchwitz, the organizer, who has been playing chess since childhood, and who won an interscholastic competition as a ninth grader, said he “just wanted to get a group of members together to play chess.” They have ten men and women, who bring their own chess sets and play from 12:30 – 4 p.m. in Room 218 on Friday afternoons. To sharpen their games, they play Internet chess puzzles and refer to chess practice sites on the Web. Bauchwitz hopes to nurture and keep the chess group going beyond this semester.

If, like the members above, you have a strong interest and want to share it with other Osher members, think about leading an extracurricular activity. They’re not considered courses and therefore are not subject to the limitation on the number of courses members can enroll in. See Carol Bernard, program coordinator, and find out when a room might be available for your group extracurricular activity.

Memorable Experiences of 2012 and 2013

Here is a new contest for you to enter.

Submit your entries by April 20

You have the opportunity to tell us about your most memorable experience at OLLI during the past several semesters.

Was there a special arts course, band performance, history lecture, unexpected surprise in any class, a special guest lecturer or a fantastic faux pas by a classmate or instructor? Was that cookie you ate at the social extra special? Did you have a great discussion or argument with someone in Arsht Hall? Did you find a great book at the book sale or some painting at the art and jewelry sale? Or maybe you were convinced in a course to do further reading or watch a video on You Tube? Did you learn to play a musical instrument; or was your experience teaching for the first time a little exciting but rewarding? Did you get special help at the Reception Desk; did you avoid being run over when crossing the street coming to class; were you pleasantly surprised at how easy it is to play DVDs for your class or how quickly handouts were copied for the class you are attending or teaching?

Let us know what you will remember from 2012/13 at Osher Lifelong Learning (or even what you wish you had been able to experience.)

Deposit in the marked box at the welcome desk in the Lobby (or nearby) or send a brief email by April 20 to Parry.norling@comcast.net; suzieFlook@hotmail.com, or lucie21@verizon.net who will be the judges for this event and might even award prizes in categories determined by the entries, so sign your name and provide the best way to contact you

You will learn about the experiences of your fellow classmates in the weeks to come—be sure you are included and watch for an announcement of the contest winners.

The Curriculum Committee and the Volunteer Development Committee thank you for your participation.
