

New Yorker Discussion

Class participants will be expected to have access to The New Yorker Magazine via a subscription (online or paper) or at a library. It is expected that they read at least some of the magazine from the previous week. Members will be asked to give a brief summary of an article which will then lead to a class discussion of the article. We will try to include as many articles as possible. Instructor will moderate the discussion & decide when to go to the next article. Time is always given to the cartoons.