This will be a survey course of the technology developed during the so-called Dark Ages. We will review the accomplishments of this thousand years despite there being little or no attention given to it.

There is a great deal from farming techniques to various military weapons. There were new forms of architecture as well. Many of the cathedrals are still with us.